Learn the epic history of Lake Biwa's ancient layers

Lake Biwa moved to its current location approx. one million years ago as an ancient lake that formed roughly four million years ago near the present-day location of Iga City, Mie Prefecture, continued to shift north. Lake Biwa's ancient layers formed as earth and sand, as well as the remains of plant and animal life, accumulated at the bottom of the lake. Soil gathered from here, which is perfect for use in pottery, is used not only in Shigaraki and Iga Ware but in Kyo Ware as well.

Geological strata can be seen on hill cliffs, etc.

What does Hasso Engi mean?

Tanuki-shaped ceramic ornaments can be seen throughout Shigaraki. There are eight aspects of their appearance that are said to bring luck, and these are collectively referred to as Hasso Engi. It is said that people began to mentally equate Shigaraki ware with Tanuki from 1951, when images of rows of Shigaraki Tanuki lined up along the road holding small flags to welcome Emperor Showa during his visit to Shigaraki were broadcast across the country.

Traveling around Koka by Car

There's so much to see in Koka. Drive a road that meanders through tea orchards and stop along the way to see Shigaraki tanukis as well as try some ninja tricks. You'll find many shops where you can discover good things to eat and great souvenirs plus more fun places to visit, so explore if time allows.

This is Koka.

Our mascot, Ninjaemon, wants to liven up the town together with everyone at the Tourism, Commerce and Industry Association in Koka City. His hobbies are making confectionaries and visiting hot springs. His specialty is hide-and-seek!

1300 years ago, during the Nara period, Emperor Shomu built the Shigaraki Palace. The 13th century Kamakura period saw the birth of Shigaraki ware. During the Warring States (Sengoku) period, Koka ninjas played a key role in the quests of Lords Nobunaga, Hideyoshi, and Ieyasu to rule the country. Once the 53 Stations of the Tokaido Road were completed under Ieyasu's rule in the Edo period, Minakuchi-shuku and Tsuchiyama-shuku thrived, paving the way to modern-day Koka.

Step Back in Time along the Old Tokaido Road

Built by Tokugawa Ieyasu, the Tokaido was one of Japan's major routes in the Edo period. The road connected Edo with Kyoto and had 53 post stations along the way. Among the 53 post stations, Tsuchiyama-shuku and Minakuchi-shuku are located in Koka City. Take a leisurely stroll along these streets where ninjas probably once walked too.

This old building looks exactly as it did back in the Edo period.

About Japan Heritage

Japanese tangible and intangible cultural properties/assets, i.e. regional histories, traditions and customs, are passed down for generations through narratives. These stories, telling of the legacy of our culture and histories, have been designated as "Japan Heritage" by the Agency of Cultural Affairs. In April 2017 two stories from Koka earned the Japan Heritage designation.
